COMMENCEMENT

Exercises at the Court House Largely Attended.

All the Graduates of Kentucky Normal College Acquitted Themselves With Much Credit.

The announcement made in this paper that the Commencement exercises of the Kentucky Normal College would be held in the court house on last Friday evening served to pack the building. Long before night the crowd began to gather, and before the arrival of the beginning hour standing room was at a premium. The court room had been tastefully and appropriately decorated, the beautiful class colors, in festoons and streamers, being used to much advantage in the decoration scheme. Promptly at the hour the exercises as heretofore published began, and they were most successfully carried through to the end. Leander Cox Caldwell was unable to be present, consequently his address, Poe and His Works, was not delivered. T. Fred Boch, of Yards, Va., had had an operation performed on his throat, and by the advice of his physician his address, A Century of Temperance Organization, was not delivered, but it appears in this issue of the News.

The Salutatorian, Edward K. Spencer, spoke in a very self-possessed way, of Old Things and New. He contrasted such ancient cities as Thebes and Babylon, and the pyramids and the sphinx with modern cities and works, drawing a strong and striking picture. Mr. Spencer declared that while some are born great, and others achieve greatness, he had, in being made salutatorian, had greatness thrust upon him. His audience thought him equal to the occasion.

Allen H. Turman, of Buchanan, spoke interestingly of Some American Humorists, naming as humorists such early writers as Irving, Hawthorne, Lowell and others, and Twain and Marshal P. Wilde among the later ones. Mr. Turman remembered that brevity is the soul of wit (and humor) and made a short address.

Paul J. Frazier, of Fort Gay, took his audience skyward and spoke instructively and entertainingly of The Planet Saturn. He told of its distance from the earth, its size, etc., and spoke interestingly of its wonderful rings. This old earth of ours also has its "rings," but to these Mr. Frazier did not allude. He has a clear voice and handled his subject well.

Edgar W. Pendleton spoke of The English Language. He told us of its past, its present, and its future—what it was originally, and what part other tongues had played in making our language as we now use it. It was a scholarly discourse, well conceived and well delivered.

Miss Margaret Moore Lackey had been named Class Prophet, and to her fell the somewhat difficult task of predicting the future of each member of her class. We say "difficult task," for it is hard to draw a proper line between saying too little in praise and too much in flattery. Miss Margaret did well along this line, not avoiding Scylla only to be wrecked on Charybdis. The horoscope she cast for each of her classmates was a favorable one, fully justified by what she and the public know of those bright young men. The class of 1909 should (and do) hold its fair prophet in high esteem.

The valedictorian of the class, Mr. Allen C. Davis, had for a theme The Lady of the Lake.

"And ne'er did Grecian chisel trace A nymph, a naiad or a grace, Of fairer form or lovelier face." So wrote Scott of his Highland heroine, and so must have Mr. Davis deemed her as he must have studied her as he prepared his able address for this occasion. It showed a thorough knowledge of the history of the times when the lady of the lake plied the loch in her light skiff, and none can read of her as Scott depicted her without falling in love with lady, lake and land.

The speeches of the Salutatorian and the Valedictorian contained much which was addressed to the faculty of the college and to their classmates. Their remarks were apt and feeling. The Valedictorian also spoke of the welcome which the students had received from the people of Louisa, and for them, he said, it was not "farewell," only "good-by."

At the close of the addresses Prof. Kennison announced that Mr. R. C. McClure, at one time prominent in the educational affairs of the county, had been asked to deliver the diplomas to the graduating class. Mr. McClure performed his pleasing duty in a very acceptable manner. His remarks to the class were pertinent and forcible, and were so delivered as to make what he said attractive to all who heard him.

Luther J. Copley, of Warfield, Ky., had completed the commercial course prescribed by the college and received his diploma.

Flowers and elegant presents were given in profusion to the individual members of the class, and "bouquets" of praise and compliment were showered upon them.

The opening invocation was made by the Rev. G. C. Hutchinson, of the Southern Methodist Church, and the benediction was given by Prof. Kennison.

The faculty, the class, and the entire student body, as well as the public, are to be congratulated upon the successful close of the 1908-9 term of the Kentucky Normal College.

Married Recently.

These have married since our last report: Miss Sarah Ellen Phillips to Floyd Penix, by the Rev. H. B. Hewlett. This occurred on the 15th of May.

Miss Lizzie Ethel Rice, daughter of James Rice, was married yesterday to Samuel Beman.

On the 13th of the present month Miss Mary Hall, of Louisa, was married to J. D. Hall, of West Virginia.

PROLIFIC WEBBVILLE.

Five Pairs of Twins in Three Months, and Seven Baby Boys on One Farm.

The stork is truly a very busy bird. He has brought five pairs of twin babies into this community inside of the past three months, all in a radius of three miles. And on the farm owned by Elias Webb, now in the possession of Dr. D. J. Thompson, seven boy babies in thirteen months. Can you find a more faithful bird than this?

Aunt Rachel Kitchen, who was very sick from a fall a few weeks ago, is very much improved.

Mrs. A. J. Pennington is also convalescent.

Joe Gardner is quite sick at the home of his father-in-law, Judge Woods.

Mrs. L. J. Webb, Jr., chaperoned a large crowd to the holiness meeting Sunday.

Kay Holbrook had wife as guests of Judge Woods and wife.

Mrs. Quisenberry and Mrs. Giles, of Jattie, were visiting friends at Grayson last week.

Mrs. Riggles, of Soldier, was the guest of her parents, Giles Green and wife, last week.

Mrs. Jessie Young, of Cherokee, is visiting her brother, Dr. Fugett, in Lewis county.

Miss Vergie Rowe was removed last Sunday to her home on Cherokee. Miss Rowe has been sick with typhoid fever eight weeks, but is now convalescent.

Sir Knight John W. Kitchen and wife will attend the conclave at Ashland this week.

Sir Knight John Webb, of Willard, who has been very sick from nervous prostration, is improving very nicely. His friends now entertain great hope of his speedy recovery.

Mr. McGlone, Sheriff of Carter county, disappeared very mysteriously three weeks ago. The last seen or heard of him was in a hotel in Cincinnati, where he remarked he would not register, as he had business in Covington. Much excitement is felt over his disappearance. We have not learned of any shortage in his accounts.

DISAPPEARS.

Sheriff of Carter County is Missing.

Mysterious Disappearance of Official is Causing Considerable Excitement at Grayson.

Carter county is alarmed over the disappearance of Sheriff H. W. McGlone. Mr. McGlone left Grayson Tuesday, April 27th, for Ashland. There he joined Col. E. B. Wilhoit, and boarded the fast C. & O. train west-bound. On the train he met Revenue Collector G. W. Castle and told him he was going to Maysville, but continued on to Cincinnati and accompanied Col. E. B. Wilhoit to the Palace Hotel. The Colonel registered and offered the pen to the Sheriff, but he declined, saying that "he had business in Covington, and would go over there." This was the last seen or heard of him by anyone in this section.

After a few days an investigation was started. His son went to Cincinnati and tried to get a clew but failed. The Odd Fellows and Postmaster also started independent investigations and telegrams were sent broadcast and newspapers were caused to publish full descriptions of the missing Sheriff, but with no success.

There was no reason why he should have left his home and county. His domestic relations have been pleasant. His business affairs are in good shape. He had settled for the taxes due county and state for the past year and received his quietus from both. He had given bond for the year's collection and was waiting for the proper certification from the State Board of Equalization and Auditor before beginning work.

Mr. McGlone left Grayson ostensibly on business wearing his everyday suit. He had about $100 with him, some say nearly $200, but an amount small if he intended to leave for parts unknown. He left quite a sum in bank, and having a note soon due, he told the cashier to charge it against his account.

Mr. McGlone was a member of the Odd Fellows lodge of Carter, and of the Knights of Pythias and Eagle lodge of that place, and was very popular with the people generally.

Drowned at Chapman.

Charles Sims, colored, a laborer employed on the dam at Chapman, was accidentally drowned in the river at that place Tuesday afternoon. He had been unloading cement, and as it is dirty work he went to his tent when the shift quit work, to take a bath. Going to the river for water he said to a fellow workman that the water felt warm, and he would go in for a swim. He went in, and being a good swimmer swam to the opposite shore on his back. He started back and swam into deeper water and almost immediately sank. He came to the surface and his struggles attracted immediate attention and one of the Messrs. Skene and a fellow-employee started in skiffs to his assistance. Before help reached him Sims went to the bottom. Several men were at once on the spot and by the direction of Mr. Skene one of them plunged into the river and dived for the unfortunate man. He was successful, and came up with the body in about five minutes from the time Sims went down. All possible efforts were made to resuscitate him, but without avail.

Sims was a member of the colored Odd Fellows, and, in charge of one of the order, the body was shipped via the N. & W. to a place near Norton, Va. Sims had worked several years for the Messrs. Skene by whom he was much esteemed.

Bishop Hoss at Paintsville.

Bishop E. E. Hoss, of Nashville, Tenn., will be the presiding bishop at the annual session of the Western Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which will be held in Paintsville beginning September 15, 1909.

Bishop Hoss was for several years prior to his election to the Episcopacy, editor of the Christian Advocate, the official organ of the Church and filled that important position most creditably. During his administration the influence and circulation of the paper increased steadily. Bishop Hoss springs from a pastorate in the Holston Conference into the most important and responsible office in the gift of the church. He is a conservative thinker, a man of broad mind and high ideas, and as a preacher, he is powerful and eloquent. His language at all times is the purest English. As a presiding officer he is capable, sure and courteous always. We are glad that the people of the Sandy valley will have an opportunity to hear this great man, the representative of a great church. —Herald.

Three Inseparables.

"Fred Muncy, 19, who shot and killed his cousin, Dock Davis, 25, a few days ago on Wolf creek, was arraigned before Squire Price for his examining trial last Tuesday. The Commonwealth answered ready. A. Copley, attorney for the defendant, advised the young fellow to waive examination, and he was returned to jail to await the action of the grand jury next July—the regular term of Circuit Court. Young Muncy already has several indictments against him for drunkenness, carrying a pistol and shooting on the public highway," —Inez Press.

Here, boys, you have the three inseparables—whiskey, a pistol, and a tough. The boy who uses the first, or carries the second is sure to become the other, and the awful combination leads as sure as fate to the perpetration of any crime known to the law.

A Pikeville Wedding.

Miss Josephine Ford, of this place, and Mr. Hiram Moore, of Buffalo, N. Y., will be married very quietly here next Monday. Mr. Moore will arrive here Saturday. He is a brother of the late Frank A. Moore, to whom Miss Ford was affianced at the time of his death.

The above written from Pikeville to the Ashland Independent possesses interest to many Louisians. Frank Moore was well known here several years ago. He was a surveyor and was in the employ of R. M. Broas. He went to the Philippines and died shortly after his arrival. His body was brought to this country, and his brother, Hiram, met Miss Ford at the burial.

Broke An Arm.

Byron Hogg, an employee of the Old River Contract Co. at the Saltpeter dam, had his left arm broken while at work last Friday afternoon. The arm was caught in a pulley and both bones of the forearm broken. He was at once brought to Dr. Wroten, the company surgeon, who took him to the hospital where he and Dr. York reduced the fracture and dressed the injured member. There were some complications in the case which made the proper adjustment of the broken bones a difficult operation. The boy stood it well. He is a son of Charley Hogg, formerly of this place.

Mrs. Boland Goes to Nashville.

Mrs. Hattie J. Boland, widow of the Rev. Dr. J. M. Boland, has been elected a teacher in the Florence Crittenden Home Mission, at Nashville, Tenn., and has gone to assume the position. Mrs. Boland's numerous friends in this city will rejoice to learn of her good fortune, and regret that she could not come to Louisa before going South.

Gone to Kentucky River.

L. S. Johnson left Louisa Wednesday for his new station on Kentucky river. He goes there to assume charge of the construction of Lock No. 13, and will be thus occupied at least two years. Mrs. Johnson accompanied him as far as Cincinnati.

H. C. Sullivan has bought an interest in the Fulkerson cemetery property and applications to him for lots will be promptly attended to.

U. S. Government Survey.

For sometime past a corps of the U. S. Government survey has been working in this section. The men working along the N. & W. are known as a "precise level" party, and are finding the exact elevation of all the points along this railroad from Bluefield to Kenova. Some little time ago E. L. McNair and R. C. Sletz made a preliminary survey through here, "triangulating" preparatory to getting the exact height of all the important hills and other elevations in the district. All of this work is important, and will be very helpful in getting exact maps and other data pertaining to our section of the State.

The corps was here this week and finished the work for this vicinity. The survey was closed Tuesday on the bench mark in the public square, located a few years ago.

Died in Ashland.

Mrs. Lys Hawes died at her home in Ashland on Friday last of fever. Her body was brought to her former home near Yatesville, where it was buried last Sunday. The Rev. H. B. Hewlett conducted the funeral services. Mrs. Hawes was a daughter of "Slasher" James Carter, deceased, and was a good, highly respected woman. She was the mother of Dr. H. Hawes, of Warfield.

R. R. Commission Visits Prestonsburg.

Riding in style on a private car and enjoying all the good things in the line of edibles that the market affords the Railroad Commission went to Prestonsburg Thursday to investigate a complaint against the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad. The commission was rather worried about the eating proposition at first when it found it had to go to Prestonsburg, so the reports say, but Garrett Wall, representing the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, tendered to the commission the use of his private car so that the commission could make the trip in comfort.

The visit of the Railroad Commission is the result of the demands of the citizens of Prestonsburg for a new depot, or, rather, for the placing of the depot nearer town. The present location is about a quarter of a mile below the village, and it is sought to have it near the end of the bridge.

Burial of Cleveland Queen.

Cleveland Queen, whose untimely death was noticed in this paper last week, was buried on Tuesday morning in the Beckley graveyard, near Vessie, this county. As heretofore told young Queen died on May 11, in Silver City, New Mexico. By direction of his relatives here the body was shipped to Kentucky for interment. On Sunday last his brother, Will Queen, and John Elswick, both of this place, went to Ashland to meet the body. It arrived Monday afternoon and was immediately taken to the young man's former home for interment. The funeral was a very large one, and the services were conducted by the Rev. H. B. Hewlett, of this place.

Report of Killing Not True.

A report was circulated last week to the effect that Dr. F. D. Marcum had killed a man at Williamson. The story proves to be wholly untrue and is believed to have been started for the purpose of injuring him.

After the conclusion of his trial here he went to a point up in West Virginia where he had a chance of securing a position as physician for a company employing a large number of men. He was in Williamson only long enough to change trains. He had no controversy with any one on the entire trip.

Killed at Glenhays.

On Sunday night last James Porter, a night watchman on the N. & W., was struck by No. 4 and instantly killed. He had probably left his watch-box to take a walk and had lain down on the track and gone to sleep. Nearly every bone in his body was broken. He was about 25 years old and married.

Destroyed by Fire.

The elegant home of Will H. Smith, formerly of Pikeville, but now living near Winchester, was, with its valuable contents, entirely destroyed by fire last week. Mr. Smith is the son of Jacob Smith, deceased, who for many years was in business at the mouth of Pond, opposite the place where Williamson now stands.

The editor has never believed that the moon's phases had any influence on the growth of potatoes. The father of the writer made a great many experiments to see if there could be anything in the theory held by a great many intelligent farmers that potatoes should always be planted in the dark of the moon and that a full moon should always be built in the light of the moon, and he came to the conclusion that there was nothing in it. Now comes the U. S. Agricultural Bureau and says that after exhaustive experiments in potato planting that, in season, one time is as good as another to put potatoes in the ground.—Flemingsburg T. A shooting affray took place at Dryden, a village in Lee county, Va., in which two men were killed and one was wounded. The commencement exercises of the Dryden public school were being held in the second story of the school building and a card of admission was necessary to gain entrance. William Jesse, a merchant, aged about 30 years, was doorkeeper, and R. M. Young, aged about 28 years, and William Bailey, aged about 25 years, started to enter. Mr. Jesse asked them for their cards, and they falling, or refusing to comply, he would not permit them to go inside. One of the men then began to curse Jesse, who struck him. Then pistols were drawn by Young and Bailey, eight shots being fired. The light was put out, and it is supposed that both Young and Bailey thought they were firing on Jessee, and instead were shooting at each other. Jesse, who was shot in the abdomen, is said to have had a pistol, but it was found to be loaded in every chamber, and it is not thought he fired. When the shooting was over and the people gathered around, Young and Bailey were dead, both having been shot through the heart. Young was a son of the Hon. Harvey Young, who represented Lee county in the House of Delegates for two terms, and was employed by the Federal Government in the Internal Revenue service. Bailey was a telegrapher and had only recently returned from the West. Jesse, it is thought, will recover.

Hymns were sung and Mr. Schwan preached a sermon after reading the eighth chapter of Romans. After the service the sick man seemed to linger, but later he lapsed into delirium.

Biography of Wm. H. Dobbins.

He was born Nov. 9, 1840 in Lawrence county Ky. His early life was spent on his father's farm near Gallup. He was of a romantic disposition and very fond of hunting. The dark hollows and fertile valleys with their giant oaks and tall pines seemed to welcome him in their midst. His home was with nature where the grapevines meander around the tall trees and the songs of the birds and the flutter of their wings could be heard as he sat on the bank of some stream where the willows bowed their heads and the swift current rushed their glittering crystals on to the waters of the deep. Thus in peace and happiness his youth passed swiftly by.

At the age of 21 he enlisted in the civil in Co. H., 14 Ky. V. I., 23 A. C. and was with Sherman in his celebrated march to the sea.

One of the first battles was fought May 14 and 15, 1864, at Resaca, Ga. Sherman sent McPherson to seize Resaca and cut off Johnston's supplies by railroad, but Johnston availed himself of this opportunity and placed his own army in this desirable position. Sherman with 100,000 troops, marched against Resaca and surrounded the north and west, but Johnston with 55,000 troops refused to leave his entrenchments and Sherman would not attack him. Finally an elevated position was gained and the railroad bridge across the Oostanaula river was destroyed Johnson seeing his critical condition retreated on the night of the 15th.

He then took position on Kennesaw Mountain. Sherman followed him closely with 100,000 Federal troops, and on the 17 of June, 1864, an assault was ordered by Sherman in which nearly 3,000 Federals were missing in killed and wounded.

His brave soldiers rushed up the hill only to fall into the jaws of death, and their cries and pains of agony as related by the old soldier seemed to be greater than they were able to stand.

He also fought in the battles of Atlanta, Columbia, Peach tree Creek, Johnsonsville, Middle Creek and many others.

Mr. Dobbins was honorably discharged at Louisa, Ky., Jan. 21, 1865 and returned to his home and has been a successful farmer until he met the terrible death which is told by the ones who found him as follows.

On Sunday, April 19, some one had set the woods on fire, and it being near Mr. Dobbins' fence, he told his wife that he would go up and see about it. She ran up after Mr. Gilkerson and some friends to help extinguish the fire. They came down and went to fighting and worked about two hours, becoming afraid that something had happened to the old gentleman, Mr. Gilkerson set out in search for him. On going about fifty yards from where he had been working his eyes were cast on one of the saddest scenes that he had ever witnessed. The old gentleman was lying upon his face, burned to death, without a stitch of clothes or garment to testify in his behalf. He had only been working about twenty minutes when it was thought by some way his clothes caught fire and he had run about thirty yards from where he had been working and had fallen down upon his face to die.

When we beheld the scene our mind went back in the twilight of American history. We thought of the savage Indians lashing his captors to the stake and torturing them in the most barbarous way that could be done.

Many tears of affection were shed around his body by loved ones as they looked upon his cold form which had been a few hours before in the bloom of health.

In conclusion we will say that he offered his life for his country and his foot prints still remain upon Kennesaw's bloody mountain, and his weary march to the sea will be remembered as long as history is recorded. Then let us hope that the omnipotent God who holds the destiny of the Universe and planets in their flying course through space has granted him permission to enter that fair land where the war cry is heard no more and the blazing fire is forever quenched.

The development of about 16,000,000 feet of white pine, oak and poplar timber in West Virginia, according to recent reports, will soon be undertaken by W. A. Pedigo of Roanoke, Va., for the Crimmon Springs Lumber Co. of Marshall, Min., which owns a tract of nearly 6,000 acres near Crimmon Springs. It is stated that Mr. Pedigo will erect on Turkey Creek a band mill of 20,000 feet daily capacity, lathe mill, etc., to be ready for operation within a few weeks. The product will be shipped from Peters Mountain, on the Potts Valley Branch of the Norfolk & Western Railway.

WEST VIRGINIA NEIGHBORS.

Brocton is the name of a new post office established near Naugatuck just recently.

Early Wednesday morning there was a pretty serious fire at Naugatuck, near Williamson, which resulted in the complete destruction of the building occupied by the Vulcan Liquor Co., and also a small residence near by. The loss on the saloon building is said to be in the neighborhood of $1500 and on the stock about the same figure. The other building destroyed was worth several hundred dollars. A good part of the loss is covered by insurance from what we can learn.

Huntington, W. Va., May 14.—Friday, June 18, is the day scheduled for a double hanging to take place at the state penitentiary, over which Joseph E. Mathews, of this city, is Warden. Isaac N. Yates, white, and Arthur Brown, colored, are the men who will pay the maximum penalty for their crimes. Both are from McDowell county. Yates was sentenced about ten days ago for committing a fiendish assault on his 20-year-old daughter, and Brown received the same sentence on a charge of murder. The account of Yates' terrible crime is still fresh in the mind of the public. When the case was put in the hands of the jury it took them eight minutes to return with a verdict of guilty. Ten minutes later the judge had pronounced the sentence that condemned Yates to the gallows. Brown and a accomplice named Joe Davis, colored, were charged with the murder of John B. Brooks, also colored. The evidence showed Brown to be the leading spirit in the crime and when a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree was returned, hanging was the penalty prescribed. Davis was tried shortly after and found guilty in the first degree, but was let off with life imprisonment.

According to authentic reports, the largest apple tree in this section of the state, if not in the world at large, is still growing on the farm of Mrs. Martha E. HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

A Column Dedicated To Tired Mother As They Join The Home Circle At Evening Tide.

The path is easy that is paved with love.

Better sweetness in the heart than greatness in the mind.

000
Life is not measured by length of days, but by depth of deeds.

000
It is of no consequence how good a man is abroad if he is really mean at home.

000

Home is the residence not merely of the body, but of the heart; it is a place for the affections to unfold and develop themselves; for the children to love, and learn, and play in; for husband and wife to toll smilingly together, and make life a blessing. The object of all ambition should be to be happy at home; if we are not happy there we cannot be elsewhere; it is the best proof of the virtues of a family circle to see a happy fireside.

000

Man is naturally a home-loving animal. In fact, most animals are home-loving. And when a man asks a woman to share his life, it is usually taken as a gentle hint that he wants her to make him a home and take a sort of general oversight of his affairs and a special oversight of himself. He likes to know that she does things for him just for the reason that she loves him, and is interested in him and his well-being. He loves his home more if there is some impress of her personality upon it. He likes best the meal she prepares for him. Of course he says very little—perhaps nothing—of all this, being a man.

000

In too many families the mother assumes the care of everything and her daughters are but geese in the household. The work which could be so easily and quickly done if each bore a share, is left for the hands already weakened by heavy burdens, and when at last the poor household drudge dies at her post, she is remembered with pity and with contempt because she resigned the post of ruler of the household to become its slave, and her daughters are left to ruin other homes with idleness and ignorance. But there are no such daughters among our households.

000

A man and wife when irritated will often say things to each other for which they are sorry the next morning, but pride often keeps them confessing their faults, and the little differences grow until a divorce suit or an assault and battery case results. When you have made a mistake, be a man or woman enough to ask forgiveness, and you will sail along on flowery beds of ease instead of jolting over the rocky beds of discord.

000

No boy, no girl, can ever come to be utterly bad who remembers only love and tenderness and sweetness as associated with father and mother in the old-time home. Give them manly and womanly example, give them training, give them the inspiration of devoted lives, give them these higher deeper things. Do not care too much as to whether you are accumulating money, so that you can leave them in fortune. We really believe that the chances are against that being a blessing for a boy. But leave them an accumulated fortune of memories and inspirations and examples and hopes, so that they are rich in brain and heart and soul. Then if you happen to leave them a fortune besides, if they have all these, the fortune will be shorn of its possibilities of evil, and will become an instrument of higher and nobler good.

000

After all that has been said about rare treasures of art and nature that may lend attraction to a home that the fairest home ornaments are bright joyous faces; and where these are wanting, all else goes for little. Bright and joyous faces always accompany warm and loving hearts which all true home-makers must possess. Hence all who intend making homes should look carefully into their own hearts; for only when these are right can they expect their home-making to prove satisfactory. Warm hearts make bright and cheerful hearths, but the warmest hearth cannot thaw the icy heart. Love is a great home-maker, that makes even the drudgery of house-keeping a pleasure, and home life a foretaste of the bliss of heaven. One cannot get too much love into one's home-making, but easily too little.

and not compulsion, is what is wanted; and the parents that are very even-tempered, not harsh or unjust, are teaching this lesson most successfully. A mother and father that have not learned self-control, are not capable of controlling children. It is a burdensome thing to many to lead a child the way it should go, for it is very necessary that parents follow the same path; we can't preach any more than we live, and the sermons from which the child draws his ideas takes place in the home—no teacher, no minister can do the parent's work. Your child has a body, mind and heart, in your keeping; if you do your work well, when life's fitful fever shall have passed, for you, the memory of your children will go back to you, with gratitude that they were sent out in the world with sound bodies, cultivated minds, and pure hearts.

"BE COURTEOUS" AT HOME.

Why not be polite? How much does it cost to say, "thank you?" Why not practice it at home—to your husband, to your wife, to your children, to your domestics? If a stranger does you some little act of courtesy, how sweet the smiling acknowledgment. If your husband or wife, ah, "it's a matter of course" no need of thanks. Should a visitor or acquaintance tread on your dress—your best, very best—and by accident tear it, how profuse you are with your "Never minds," "Don't think of it," "Accidents will happen." If a husband does it, he gets a frown; if a child, it is punished. Ah, these are little things, say you. They all tell mightily upon the heart, let me assure you; and little as they are, they disturb peace or create pleasure in the family circle. A gentleman stops at a friend's house and finds it in confusion. He does not see anything to apologize for—"never thinks of such matters." Everything is right, cold supper, cold room, crying children—"perfectly comfortable." Goes home, where his wife has been taking care of children or attending the sick, and working her life almost out. Then he does not see why things can't be kept in order; "there never were such cross children before." No apologies accepted at home. Oh, why not look at the sunny side at home as well as abroad, and try pleasant words instead of surly ones. Why not be agreeable at home. Why not use freely the golden coin of courtesy. How sweetly those little words sound. "Many thanks," or "You are very kind." Doubtless, yes, thrice sweet from the lips we love, when smiles make the eyes sparkle with the light of affection. Be polite to your children. Be courteous to your servants. Do you expect them to be mindful of your welfare, to grow glad at your approach, to bound away to do your pleasure before the request is half spoken? Then, with all your authority, mingle kindness and cheerfulness. Brothers and sisters, be amiable, be courteous among yourselves and your servants.

I know of many of my neighbors who have used them and who have been freed from kidney trouble. While I am getting well along in years, I do not expect a complete cure, but Doan's Kidney Pills have given me relief from dull, heavy backaches which were most aggravating. Headaches were also a source of annoyance to me and the secretions from my kidneys were irregular in passage. I'm feeling so much better at present that I am only too glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to my friends."

Biggest in America.

There are some wonderful lions with the John H. Sparks Shows, which will exhibit at Louisa, Thursday, May 27th. They are not only of amazing size and beauty, but they have been trained to do some of the most thrilling acts ever presented to an audience. Mons. Doucet, the world's greatest lion tamer, was born and raised in the jungles of equatorial Africa, and from childhood was accustomed to hear the roars of the man eating Kings of the forest that prowled about his cabin at night. His father once captured some lion cubs which he trained to aid him in his hunting expeditions. Thus reared, the boy became naturally a lion tamer and hunter. Selecting some cubs from the largest species known, he reared them and educated them to perform feats that would illustrate the amazing strength and agility of these beasts.

A pair of these great animals will be turned loose in a great steel enclosure, in full view of the audience. Mons. Doucet will enter this enclosure unarmed, and put the lions through astonishing performances. It is the most thrilling act of the kind ever seen, and will never be forgotten by the beholder.

Like every other act and feature presented with the John H. Sparks Shows it is far away and superior to anything of the kind ever seen before. There are numerous other trained animal acts, in which ferocious tigers, leopards, hyenas, tremendous elephants, etc., will obey the commands of their fearless masters. No one should miss this great show at Louisa, May 27.

CORRECT CLOTHES FOR MEN AND BOYS

FARM NEWS.

THE DAIRY FARMER.

The dairy farmer—what kind of a man must he be? Can just anybody run a dairy and make a success of it? Not at all, any more than he can run a bank successfully without being adapted to it and understanding the business.

A dairy farmer, in the first place, must be a man of energy and push and not a man looking for an easy job. He must be up early and about business. Cows must be fed and milked before most people are stirring. If milk or cream is for city delivery it must be there early. If the distance is long the start must often be made before day.

The dairy farmer must understand soils and cropping. He must know best crops to raise for supplying the choicest provender for his herd. He must understand the balanced ration, and know how to adapt his feed to each animal.

To be a man of business is also necessary. He will have other interests on his farm, and must be apt in harmonizing them with the dairy feature. He must know how to trade successfully—to buy and sell in the most profitable way—to keep posted on market prices and skillful in dealing successfully with customers.

The dairy farmer must be a man in love with his business—one who will not want to shirk its duties and responsibilities. He must keep his eye on the future results and see where and how profits are to come in.

He need not be a classical scholar, but the more education and intelligence he has, combined with common sense, the better he will succeed. He must be able to keep some system of accounts as an index to the business.

The dairy farmer must also be a good judge of stock. He must know something of a good cow when he sees it, and be able to test her milk and keep track of what she is doing in the way of paying for her keep and a little extra besides.

To be a success he must do a clean business in every respect. His stables must be clean, and his milk and butter clean. His conscience must also be clean for he cannot "do dirt" in his dealings and come out successful in the end.

He cannot spend all his time in reading, but if he is to be a dairyman of the highest order he must know how the literature of his profession. He must have his agricultural and dairy journal and manuals, or guides, that will keep him posted on the latest science of his business. He must be posted on what dairymen are doing all over the country and read some great market journal, especially if he ships his products to distant cities.

RUNNING THE SEPARATOR.

The Farmers' Tribune, in advising a correspondent with regard to a separator, says that the right sort of a hand separator will skim as efficiently as a power separator. Nor does the size of a machine cut any figure.

To do the right sort of work, the machine must be set level and on a solid foundation. Brick or cement is to be preferred. The bearings must also be kept well oiled and the running speed uniform. Put a steady pressure on the handle bar and avoid a jerky motion.

Thick or thin cream may be obtained by way of setting the separator. Skim the milk as soon as possible after it comes from the cow, if you want the best results. Good results can be obtained later by re-heating, but this is not generally convenient.

SELECTING COWS.

Expert buyers of milk cows can go into the Chicago stockyards and pick out the best milkers with a great deal of accuracy. This comes from long practice. When the cow is shipped to some dairyman in the East, she is pretty sure to be satisfactory.

But if you are a common farmer getting up a small herd, you are not apt to be so successful in selecting cows offered by other farmers around you. You may obtain a score card, or a scale of points, to assist you in making your selections, for quality is indeed indicated by certain external features or markings. Yet the process of combining these into a whole is not easy, especially to the new man. You will do better to make a milking test of the animal or trade on a guarantee.

FOLLOW NATURE.

If you raise a calf by hand you must follow nature as closely as possible. Hence give the calf mother's milk for the first few days. Until the calf has a good start, the milk should be warm. It should be fed at least three times a day. Nature's way is oftener than that.

It will not do to bring up a calf on skim milk alone. This unbalanced food will not give full nourishment, and you have a poorly developed calf. The lack of fat must be supplied by cornmeal or ground flaxseed.

The milk fed to a calf should always be sweet and as fresh as possible. Cold milk gives a young calf the scours. You are more apt to overfeed than to underfeed. The amount must be adapted to the make-up and demands of the individual calves differ. Have a good pasture for your calves.

DIVORCED THREE TIMES

At the Age of 25. One Rejected Suitor Ended His Life.

Another chapter in the eventful career of Dora Richardson, once the child-wife of Gen. Cassius M. Clay and one of the most discussed women in the United States, was written when she was granted a decree divorcing her from Samuel Thomas. The matrimonial career of Dora Richardson began when she was thirteen years old, she was at that age becoming the wife of Gen. Clay, and now at the age of twenty-five years she has married and divorced three men, while the fourth committed suicide because he was denied the privilege of being counted as one of the husbands of the uncouth country girl.

Previous to her marriage to Gen. Clay, Dora Richardson had had two suitors for her childish heart in the persons of William Bryant and Riley Brock, and, while neither thought of marrying the girl at that time, she being only twelve years old both looked forward to the time when she would be old enough to decide which one she would choose for a life partner. It was at this time that Dora went for a visit to her brother, Clell Richardson, at "White Hall," the Clay mansion, in Madison county, and following that visit Dora returned to her home and informed her youthful suitors that she intended to become the bride of Gen. Clay.

Both young men tried to persuade her against the marriage to the aged veteran of the Mexican war, but without avail, and on December 13, 1884, became the Mistress of "White Hall." The shock was too much for young Bryant and he ended it all by the suicide route. Not so young Brock, however, as he believed there was plenty of time, due both to the tender years of the girl and the increasing age of Gen. Clay, and his hopes and ambitions were realized even before he expected. After three years of wedded life little Dora grew tired of the seclusion of the Clay mansion and returned to the home of her brother in Jessamine county.

It was not long after her return home that the courts gave her freedom and the right to marry again and she was not long in taking advantage of the opportunity to marry Brock, who had renewed his suit for her hand even before the courts had given her the right to marry again.

The marriage of the girl to Brock was almost as stormy as the one with Gen. Clay as Brock soon became wild and reckless, and on several occasions was arrested and thrown in jail. These arrests began shortly after the marriage of Brock and Dora, and the girl would spend days at a time just outside the cell occupied by her husband and plead with him to reform, and upon promise to do so she would pledge the property given her by Gen. Clay to secure his liberty pending trial and engage attorneys to defend him.

Although never convicted on a serious charge Brock caused his wife to dissipate much of her little fortune in freeing him, and when it became apparent that he was beyond reformation Dora left him and filed suit for divorce.

Shortly after her divorce from Brock Gen. Clay died and a few months later Brock was killed by a railroad train, many believing that it was a case of suicide because of his wife's divorce. Little was heard from Dora after her divorce from Brock and few knew that she had been married to Thomas until her petition for divorce was filed when it became known that she had been married three years.

And now at the age of twenty-five years Dora Richardson-Clay Brock-Thomas is regarded as the much-married and much divorced young woman of Kentucky and those who know her do not look for her to remain single long. She still retains much valuable property given her by Gen. Clay at the time of their separation and divorce and should the desire to continue the reputation began at the age of twelve years and continued uninterrupted until the present time it is likely she will find suitors in the village of Pinkard, Jessamine county, where she now resides on property brought for her by Gen. Clay.

Capital of West Virginia Goes Dry.

Charleston, W. Va., May 11.—Amid confusion and cheers the new bipartisan City Council composed of 20 Republicans and 20 Democrats, by a vote of 22 to 17, placed Charleston, the Capital City of West Virginia and the second largest city in the State, in the dry column for the revenue year beginning July 1.

It was the first meeting of the new City Council under the new bipartisan charter and immediately after the organization of the body by the election of William G. MacCorkle, son of former Governor MacCorkle as president, the solons decided that no license to retail intoxicating liquors should be sold in the next revenue year.

The action of the municipal licensing body was so unexpected that the retail liquor dealers of the city, astounded by the verdict, were in confusion. Not one of them expected any action at the initial meeting of the new council, and none were present at the session.

State Superintendent T. M. Hare, of the Anti-Saloon League, was present. To-night the league is said to have engineered the scheme to place Capital City aboard the water wagon. Hare refused to make any comment further than to say that he was gratified at the action of the city solons.

Immediately after the election of MacCorkle as President of the Council an ordinance prepared by the Board of Affairs was read. The ordinance proposed to reduce the number of saloons in the city from 45 to 30 and make the municipal license $1,500 a year, which, with the state license, made a total of $2,500 for the retail dealers to bear.

Judge W. W. Wertz offered an amendment to the ordinance, providing that no license should be issued for the license year, beginning July 1. The amendment was adopted by a vote of 22 to 17, 12 Republicans and 10 Democrats voting against the license.

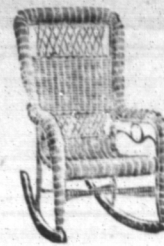

Before the vote was announced, an effort was made to have the announcement of the vote postponed but the filibuster could not muster sufficient strength, and the motion was lost. Immediately after the announcement of the vote, Council took a recess until next Thursday night.

The liquor dealers say they will make an effort at the meeting to get council to reconsider its action, but the Anti-Saloon League leaders contend that they have sufficient votes to prevent the granting Thursday night, and are preparing for a monster mass meeting.

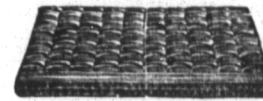

Charleston is the largest city in the state to prohibit the sale of intoxicants. Unless the council recedes from the position taken to-night, 45 saloons must go out of business on the first day of July.

Make War on The Fly.

Home and Farm has had much to say about health on the farm. It will have more.

Health, sound and unshaken, is essential to continued labor, and continued labor is essential to success in life.

Get well and keep well, if you would make farming pay.

The farmer's family ought to be well. City physicians tell their patients to live in the open air, to take outdoor exercise, to work in the ground, and it is all good advice.

The farmer so lives and labors, but health often fails him. His water is poisoned or the atmosphere is laden with disease germs, or the fly and the mosquito spread typhoid and malaria.

Protect your water supply. Screen your house against the fly, and the mosquito. Keep all food supplies protected against the house fly.

To emphasize all we have said heretofore we take some extracts from a pamphlet issued by the Merchants' Association of New York describing the activities of the common house fly and the harm it does.

The common house fly is a carrier of disease. Typhoid fever, diarrhoea, dysentery and tuberculosis are carried by flies.

Flies feed on food and also on the worst kind of filth. They go from one to the other.

The house fly is particularly filthy, because it has its birthplace and lays its eggs almost exclusively in horse manure.

Our domestic animals, the dog and cat, though far from clean in all their habits, we like to have about us, but we keep them in their proper place. The house fly, on the other hand, is tolerated everywhere, crawls over our hands and faces, gets into our milk, walks over all our food, often soiling and contaminating everything that comes in contact with its filthy feet and tongue.

It is essential that flies be kept away from everything that infants and young children come in contact with, particularly all feeding utensils and things that children are likely to put in their mouths.

The essential thing is to do away with the breeding places of these dirty pests.

Screen all food and keep flies away from it.

Keep stable manure—breeding place for flies—in a vault or pit or screened inclosure and sprinkle its surface with chloride of lime.

Quickly cover up food after a meal and bury or burn table refuse.

Keep damp cloths near meat dishes, milk jugs and other food receptacles. Burn pyrethrum powder in the house. It will kill most of the flies and those it does not will fall stunned, when they may be swept up and burned. Sticky fly-papers are good traps, provided they are burned every day.

Remember that the exposure of any kind of refuse near a dwelling furnishes a breeding place for flies, and if food is exposed the flies will deposit germs upon it.

Observe these directions and so promote the health of your family and of your neighborhood.

FIGHT AGAINST LIQUOR.

"A Century of Temperance Organization," by T. Fred Boch, K. N. C. Graduate.

(This paper was prepared for commencement of K. N. C., but on account of an operation on his throat Mr. Boch was not able to deliver it.)

The subject, A Century of Temperance Organization, assigned me for this evening is indeed quite extensive and would require an appreciable period of time to discuss fully. It is worthy of, and deserves, the careful consideration of everyone. But within the limited time allowed us we are able to examine only a few of the more important temperance organizations that have been founded within the last century. However, before we proceed farther, let us notice some of the manners and customs of our ancestors of a hundred years ago.

It seems that it was customary for our forefathers to use ardent spirits in many ways and for many purposes. In fact there were very few total abstainers among them, because they thought strong drink almost a necessity for the maintenance of health. With such an opinion it was used freely by judges, ministers of the gospel, physicians and patients, farmers and mechanics, and indeed by nearly all people. A custom in the southern part of the United States was to drink a so-called toddy upon arising from a night's sleep and to keep a jug of spirits in the home continually. And the idea prevailed that the drink flavored with cherries was a preventive of pulmonary disorders and that the already poisonous rum further contaminated with opium killed the infants' cries. Undoubtedly it did, but by inducing a state of stupidity or sluggishness. The well known John Marsh said that he entered Yale University in 1800 and when dinner was served on July the fourth a barrel of wine was elevated upon the table and no one was expected to leave the dining hall until the cask was emptied. These are only a few instances of how ardent spirits were used only a century ago. We could cite many other occurrences even worse than these, but the ones mentioned will suffice to show how the use of intoxicants was becoming prevalent and growing from bad to worse.

Do you think our nation could have advanced to any high degree of civilization if so dishonorable a custom had prevailed? It is very doubtful if no attempt to suppress the evil had been made our nation would have degenerated instead of developed. But measures were taken to restrain the on-coming deceiver, and the first effort to check it was made in New York in 1808 by Dr. Billy J. Clarke, a country physician. He foresaw the destruction to which strong drink was leading the people of his country, and therefore resorted to measures for its suppression. It is said that on a dark stormy night in March, after a day of hardship in visiting his patients, Dr. Clarke suddenly entered the home of his pastor and exclaimed that they would become a community of drunkards unless something was speedily done to arrest the progress of intemperance. The result was that a temperance league was founded without delay, and to-day Dr. Clarke is proclaimed to have been the first one to make an effort to restrain intemperance. He might have been the first to protest against the use of strong drink, but certainly he was not the last; for since his time thousands of voices have ascended unto God and man imploring them to crush out that disdainful monster that has blighted the hopes and desecrated the souls of so many. Surely the supplications of the faithful have not returned void; for temperance organizations have sprung up here and there until some of the most influential leagues in the world consist of men, women and children who are strongly opposed to the excessive use of drink, and so extremely object to it that they have been, and are now, fighting it with all their might and means.

The people have concluded, and rightly so, that unless the drink evil be restrained, nay ostracized, it will so degrade the subsequent generations as to unfit them for the requirements of a ruling nation. At present many banks, railroads, manufacturers, merchants and business men of various trades will not employ men who use intoxicants. They say men can not drink alcoholic stimulants and be relied upon to do their duties. Further, scientific research has proven, time and again, that the inordinate use of alcoholic drink is absolutely conducive to ill health. It stupefies the intellect, it demoralizes the man.

With these facts before us, do we censure the good people of our land for rising in rebellion against the saloon? We certainly do not, but rather wish to take part ourselves. Let us be thankful that we have a people brave enough to demand the right and oppose the wrong.

It is evident that, if the saloon is to exist its supporters must devise plans to repress the temperance societies. The brewers realized this fact some years ago and called together a number of stockholders to consider measures in regard to this matter, and I will now quote verbatim one of the infernal resolutions that was adopted by that assembly. They said: "We will kill every preacher, burn every church, massacre every member of the temperance societies and kill all the praying women. If we will surrender our liberty or give up our lawful business."

It is true that they have killed a number of the members of our temperance leagues, but have they murdered every preacher? And have they massacred every praying woman? No, and they never shall; for every day the sentiment of the public grows stronger against them. They are being driven from city to city, yet they continue their work of disgrace and destruction. By making attractive their dens of vice and flame they lure the youth of our land into them. Statistics show that in the city of Boston there are eighty thousand young men who never attend church, and of the hundred thousand in Brooklyn only ten percent are church attendants; yet the grog shops are thronged from the time the doors are opened until they are shut, and you may be assured that they are seldom closed.

This fiendish work of the saloon is a dishonor and a disgrace to our nation; and not only is it detrimental to our own land, but to the foreign countries that look to us for protection and manners. The less civilized nations will not receive our missionaries and teachers because they see us bring that detestable barrel to their borders. They say: "Why do you come over here to teach us when we are better than you? We do not use intoxicants as you do." Some time ago when a missionary reached the continent of Africa, he was met by a native who told him that as long as we continue to export intoxicating drinks to that country we need not send any ministers; for, he said, we were killing more black men with drink than we were saving from sin.

These facts with many more are what have led to the establishment of the different temperance societies whose members are found in nearly every clime; and now let us mention a few by name.

First, let us notice the Order of the Sons of Temperance which extends over North America, Great Britain, South Africa, Australia and many other lands. No one is admitted as a member to this band unless he is a total abstainer, and in North America alone the number of members exceeds three millions, to say nothing of those foreign countries. This society was established as a refuge for men who have reformed and as a shield from temptation. Any one who once becomes a member of this league is so well cared for that he seldom returns to the bottle.

Secondly, let us examine the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. This society had its origin in 1828, but it seemed to remain dormant until 1873 when it began its work anew, and ever since has been growing until it is one of the most powerful leagues in the world. It is the largest society composed exclusively of women extant, and is one of the most perfect organizations in existence. This league has been one of the most important factors in securing the passage of over fifty righteous laws, all of which have greatly aided the temperance cause. The W. C. T. U. is now established in over fifty nations and is spreading the world over. We are greatly indebted to the ladies of this society for the grand work in which they are engaged.

Thirdly, another very potent institution is the National Temperance Society whose chief work is the publication and distribution of temperance literature. Within its time of existence this league has sent out over one billion copies of its three papers, The National Advocate, The Temperance Banner, and The Water Lily, all of which are temperance papers. In addition to these thousands of books and pamphlets have been put in the hands of the people, making a total of over one billion, two hundred and fifty million pages of literature circulated by that company. This league invites all churches to assist in the work of bridling intemperance, and I dare say you can not find a church in our Union which is not in some way fighting the saloon.

Again, the Anti-Saloon League is one of the most effective temperance orders extant and deserves the support of every one. There are many other leagues that could be mentioned, but we must be brief and now for a short time speak of the effects of these different societies.

This far we have hardly mentioned any thing that has been accomplished by any of them, and naturally you ask: "What are they doing? Have they achieved any thing?" Let us observe.

As a result of the efforts of these several organizations there are at present eight entire States in our Union that have laws prohibiting the liquor traffic, and ten other States that are now considering local option bills. In addition there are six more States that have prohibition measures now pending, and the indications are that it is merely a matter of time until all the States in the Union will eliminate the saloon; for there are now twenty-eight States in addition to those already so-called dry that are endeavoring to pass laws prohibiting the sale of intoxicating drinks. Is it not wonderful? About three-fourths of all the States in the Union in opposition to the saloon, shouting away with it!

Let us notice the recent proceeding in Ohio. Within four months, from September, 1908, to January, 1909, thirty-eight counties expelled the saloon regardless of the strenuous fight of the barkeepers. To-day Ohio is ninety percent "dry" territory, and it is very probable that by the expiration of a twelve-month the entire State will have rejected the saloon. And let us come nearer home to your own dear State where the demand for right is always made. Kentucky has taken a leading part in expunging the liquor traffic and is hoping for the elimination of the saloon in the near future. And, the temperance wave is not confined to North America alone, but extends over foreign lands as well. Sweden which one hundred years ago was the most drink-cursed country in the world is now the most sober on the continent of Europe. Also Hungary and other European countries now have ordinances restraining the excessive use of intoxicating beverages. And farther East, the W. C. T. U. has a strong influence in Japan and South Africa, and is almost the ruler of entire Australia.

Thus we see the effects of these temperance organizations and I believe the United States have been the leading factor in bringing about these reforms both at home and in foreign lands.

Have the temperance societies accomplished any thing? Yes, and let us sustain them in that noble work; for there is yet much to be done.

May our motto ever be: "Onward to the end," until the beautiful halo which now surrounds us shines forth as the Sun in all his splendor. Then, after we have subdued the curse of intemperance and banished it from our land, we shall have passed another milestone on our journey to a higher life which should be the zealous desire of all.

Hickman, Ky., May 13.—News was received here to-day of the tragic death of Will DeLeon of Three States, ten miles below Hickman. Will DeLeon and Pete Wheeler were out turkey hunting, but neither knowing that the other was out hunting.

DeLeon had a turkey caller, and was imitating the turkey call, and Wheeler hearing the call, and supposing it was a wild turkey getting nearer, hid himself behind a tree and waited to get a chance to shoot. As Wheeler came closer still giving the turkey call, DeLeon moved a little to look out, setting a clump of bushes in motion, and Wheeler thinking the turkey was in the bushes fired.

The whole load entered DeLeon's face, severing the tongue and filling his face full of shot. DeLeon lived three minutes. He was a young man of twenty-three years, and had been married only a few months. Wheeler is frantic with grief over the affair. DeLeon belonged to one of the most prominent families in that vicinity.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

Jas W. Turner, of Paintsville, has decided to enter the race for the Republican nomination for Representative from the counties of Johnson and Martin.

Attorney Scott Whitt and Miss Ida Farney, of Pikeville, were married in Ironton Thursday at the Mayor's office by Mayor Golden.

Mr and Mrs. Harry Sammons sold to Grover Davis, of this city, their residence property in the Harrison-Richardson addition. Consideration $500. This will be very convenient for Mr. Davis, as he has a saw and planing mill on the adjoining lot.—Prestonsburg Herald.

Sam Mullins, a "hard shell" Baptist preacher, who is not found wanting in the characteristic grunt, by which the preachers of this iron-clad religion emphasize and embellish their discourses, has preached several sermons in the court house within the last week, being the first "hard shell" to ever preach in this significant structure.—Pike cor. Ash. Ind.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees Paintsville Graded Free School held Thursday evening, the following faculty was selected for the next year: Roscoe Murray, principal; Mrs. Josie Daniel, Grace Vanhoose, Zora Daniel and Gertrude Campbell, assistants. There is no change in the faculty of this year except Mr. Murray takes the place of Mr. Geo. W. Peck, resigned.

Judge J. P. Harris advises that he has issued about 40 rules against road overseers in Floyd county, and states that he will be around the week before County Court, which convenes on the 24th day of May, to be his own witness and he is anxious that each overseer shall have his particular road in good condition, as he does not wish to be forced to impose any fines.

Because the prison physician recommended it on the ground that he is dying with consumption, John Shepherd, of Floyd county, has been paroled by the Prison Commission. Shepherd was sent up for twenty-one years in 1904 for manslaughter. He has really been a very sick man for several months, and has been gradually growing weaker. His father took him home.

Mr. Schrage, the contractor, is pushing the work on the new Southern Methodist Church at Paintsville. The foundation is completed and the walls are now being constructed as fast as time will admit. The building will be completed and ready for use by the 15th of September, the day the West Virginia Conference of the Southern Methodist Church convenes there. It is now thought the building when completed and furnished and a pipe organ installed, will cost at least $35,000. It will be one of the very finest church structures in Kentucky.

Recently, at the home of W. H. Trivette, there was a pretty home wedding at which was consummated the nuptials of his daughter, Miss May, and Mr. W. B. Elliott, of Louisa. There were only a few immediate relatives and friends of the family present. The bride was dressed in a beautiful cream wedding gown. The wedding march, from Mendelssohn, was played by Miss Hester Francis. The beautiful ring service of the Presbyterian Church was solemnized by Rev. M. D. McClelland. They will make their home at Louisa, and left for that point the same afternoon.—Pike cor. Ashland Independent.

The site for Asbury College has been purchased from F. M. Stafford and contains twenty acres of finely located land near the C. & O. depot. Mr. Stafford showed his liberality by accepting $400 per acre for the property when in fact it is worth at least $600 per acre. Nothing now remains but the arrangement of a few preliminaries. We are informed that the trustees of the college contemplate starting the work on three buildings by June 15, for the present the buildings to be erected are a main College building and a dormitory each for boys and girls. It is planned to use three sets of workmen at work and every effort will be made to complete the three buildings in time for the opening at the beginning of the school year, this fall.—Paintsville Herald.

The Paintsville Herald says: We are informed that the railroad now running within a few miles of West Liberty, Ky., is to be built on to Paintsville via open fork of Paint creek and down Big Mud Lick. It is said that the construction for building this road is being let in ten mile sections and that work will be pushed on it at once. The route has been surveyed and it seems likely this road will be completed in the next twelve months. There will be a station on the head of Paint creek, one on Mud Lick, near Jas. P. Simers, and one on or near the property of Abe Litman, at Little Mud Lick. When this road is completed it will make Paintsville the biggest shipping center and most important town in the mountains of Kentucky.

Fallsburg and Fullers.

The Reverend Cassady preached at Fallsburg last Sunday to the largest congregation that has attended any meeting this year.

Eli Frazier and James Ausin conducted the Sunday School.

The verdict that was rendered by the jury to fine James Austin $25 for selling intoxicating drinks was overruled by the Judge, so he don't pay a fine. James Austin never was known to be engaged in any kind of unlawful business.

S. N. Hutchinson has been quite ill since he got released from the jury. He has been having to hire hands to do his work. He will have enough tobacco plants to cover several acres if the night riders don't come. Those that read the Cincinnati Post can see that the night riders are destroying the tobacco plants in some parts of Kentucky, but they are getting the blood hounds after them.

Some of the farmers around here are beginning to work their corn that was planted early.

The prospects are not very good around here for peaches and apples, but will be apt to have abundance of blackberries.

A good many of the families around here have been putting out sweet potato plants, and it appears like there will be more sweet potatoes than common raised this season.

Those that have been reading the Big Sandy News are planting abundance of sorghum, and I'm satisfied there will be much more sorghum planted here on account of what was published.

Wm. Austin, that I reported bed-fast last week, is now attending the station.

Mrs. W. T. Kane has an incubator and has an abundance of chickens hatched and has the incubator still at work.

You can see a good many men and boys along the banks of Blaine with fish poles, but you can't see many fish that they have pulled out, but it seems like they will still try it.

Don'ton.

A large crowd attended church at the head of Don'ton Sunday, conducted by Revs. Patrick and Hall. Miss Teany Stansbury, of Louisa, is visiting her aunt at this place, Mrs. Sadie Stansbury.

Beautiful Spanish Dancer Gives Praise to Pe-ru-na.

NERVOUS prostration is usually the result of a vocation which requires a continual strain on the nervous system. In such cases it would be wise if a change of vocation could be made. But this is not always possible and a good tonic becomes a necessity. Peruna is a tonic that invigorates without producing a drug habit.

Peruna is not a beverage nor a bitter, but an honest, straightforward tonic that increases the appetite and encourages digestion. There is a great demand for tonic during the depressing heat of summer, and especially in countries where hot weather is very prevalent. Such a demand is exactly met by Peruna.

Miss Pilar Monterde Praises Peruna as a Tonic.

A letter sent to the Peruna Drug Mfg. Co., from the popular Spanish dancer, Miss Pilar Monterde, is as follows:

Teatin Principal, City of Mexico, Nov. 3, 1905.
The Peruna Drug Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio, U. S. A.
Gentlemen: Having used your justly celebrated remedy, "La Peruna," for some time, I have the pleasure of informing you that I consider it the best tonic I have ever used.
It is a wonderful fortifier of the nerves after exhaustion and it increases the vitality of the whole body, and in my own case has produced the most complete and permanent restoration. It is also pleasant to the taste.
I do not hesitate, therefore, to recommend this remedy to all women as the best and most pleasant tonic that they can possibly take.
Yours very truly,
(Miss) P. Monterde.

Misses Belle and Hermia Vinson, of Yorkville, W. Va., was here last Sunday.

Misses Corn Roberts and Nannie and Ed Lambert attended church at Powder Mill Sunday eve.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harvey have returned from Dingess, W. Va., where they have been visiting his aged father, who is very ill.

Jennie Frazier, of Fort Gay, is visiting her brother, Chas. Frazier, of this place.

Everybody seems to be doing well and attending to their own business.

Although we work every day, we are not inclined to boast, say, doesn't that speak well of our people?

We have two weddings to report this week. The first to launch bark on the sea of matrimony Nannie Chapman, widow of Ike O. man. She married a gentleman the blue grass region of Kent whose name is Heilsley. He was widower with four children.
